

Instructional Technology Program

Open House

Friday, March 7, 2008

6:00 - 8:00 p.m.

Commerce I, Room 100

Learn about exciting career opportunities in the emerging field of learning technologies. Our world-class faculty will provide information on our certificate and degree programs emphasizing:

Instructional Design and Development

Creative effective solutions to instructional challenges using technology in public, private, government and education contexts.

- Instructional Design and Development M.Ed. Degree (30 credit hours)
Full-time (significant tuition-funded) and part-time options
- e-Learning Graduate Certificate (15 credit hours)
Offered totally as well as face-to-face

Integration of Technology in Schools

Integrating technology in the teaching/learning process focusing on the K-12 learning environment.

- Integration of Technology M.Ed. Degree (36 credit hours)
- Integration of Technology in Schools Online Graduate Certificate (15 credit hours)

Assistive/Special Education Technology

Incorporating technology to assist individuals to work effectively in school, home, work, and community environments.

- Assistive/Special Education M.Ed. Degree (30 credit hours)
- Assistive/Special Education Graduate Certificate (15 credit hours)

For more information on the IT Program visit <http://it.gse.gmu.edu>

If you plan on attending, please RSVP to 703-993-3798 or kshillin@gmu.edu. Refreshments will be available. Commerce I, Room 100 is located at 4085 University Drive, Fairfax, Virginia. Plenty of parking is available.