Course Description

EDUC 537 examines multicultural education through a focus on the historical, sociological, and philosophical foundations of education. Particular attention is given to the role of ethnicity in the development of the United States and its education system. An overview of multicultural/multilingual curricula and culturally and linguistically responsive instructional and assessment techniques are also included.

Course Objectives

At the conclusion of EDUC 537, students will be able to:

- Know, understand, and use the major concepts, principles, theories, and research related to the nature and role of culture in language development and academic achievement that support individual students’ learning. (TESOL 2a).
- Know, understand, and use knowledge of how cultural groups and students’ cultural identities affect language learning and school achievement. (TESOL 2b).
- Know, understand, and apply concepts, research, and best practices to plan classroom instruction in a supportive learning environment for culturally and linguistically diverse students. (TESOL 3a).
- Understand the factors that contribute to child abuse and neglect and the importance of helping abused and neglected children.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the multiple, often competing, goals of public schooling, how these goals have evolved historically, and how they presently impact our democratic society.
- Be familiar with a wide range of standards-based materials, resources, and technologies, and choose, adapt, and use them effectively with culturally and linguistically diverse students and content teaching. (TESOL 3c).
- Demonstrate knowledge of history, research, and current practice in the field of culturally responsive pedagogy and apply this knowledge to improve teaching and learning. (TESOL 5a).
- Collaborate with and be prepared to serve as professional resources, advocate for culturally and linguistically diverse students, and build partnerships with students’ families.
- Establish a knowledge base about the dynamics and selected manifestations of social and school-based inequities and forms of oppression such as racism, ethnocentrism, sexism, classism, ableism, linguicism, heterosexism, religious oppression, and others.

Course Requirements

- Fieldwork is required as part of this course.
- Students are expected to complete all readings prior to each class, attend all class sessions, and participate actively during group discussions and activities.
- Students must complete all assignments on time. Points will be taken off assignments that are submitted past deadline, unless special arrangements have been made with the professor in advance.

Detailed information and examples for each assignment are available on the TaskStream site at http://www.taskstream.com/ts/bright11/537Fall09.html. The password is brighteduc537.

NOTE: All assignments are due via the TaskStream website by midnight on the assigned day unless previous arrangements are made with me. Each student is responsible to maintain a record (a printout of your email) indicating the date and time submitted and to confirm receipt by me.

Please upload all written assignments to TaskStream unless otherwise noted. I will return your electronic copy via email with my feedback and grade.

Students with Special Needs
Please see me early in the session if you require special accommodations to successfully complete this course.

Inclement Weather
When there is a change in the university schedule due to inclement weather or other circumstances, the announcement will be made on the university switchboard (703 993-1000) and the university's web site.

Statement of Expectations—College of Education and Human Development

The Graduate School of Education (GSE) expects that all students abide by the following:

- Students are expected to exhibit professional behavior and dispositions. See gse.gmu.edu for a listing of these dispositions.

- Students must follow the guidelines of the University Honor Code. See http://www.gmu.edu/catalog/apolicies/#TOC_H12 for the full honor code.

- Students must agree to abide by the university policy for Responsible Use of Computing. See http://mail.gmu.edu and click on Responsible Use of Computing at the bottom of the screen.

- Students with disabilities who seek accommodations in a course must be registered with the GMU Disability Resource Center (DRC) and inform the instructor, in writing, at the beginning of the semester. See www.gmu.edu/student/drc or call 703-993-2474 to access the DRC.

The Interstate New Teacher Assessment and Support Consortium (INTASC) Model Standards for Beginning Teacher Licensing, Assessment and Development: A Resource for State Dialogue (1992) outline the knowledge, dispositions, and performances deemed essential for all teachers regardless of the subject or grade level being taught. Drafted by a committee of teachers, teacher educators, and state agency officials, they represent a shared view among the states and within the profession of what constitutes competent beginning teaching. These standards are currently being translated into standards for various subject matter areas and specific student populations. Please go to http://www.ccsso.org/projects/Interstate_New_Teacher_Assessment_and_Support_Consortium/Projects/Standards_Development/ for details.

The relationship of EDUC 537 to the INTASC principles is as follows:

Principle #2: The teacher understands how children learn and develop, and can provide learning opportunities that support their intellectual, social and personal development.

Principle #3: The teacher understands how students differ in their approaches to learning and creates instructional opportunities that are adapted to diverse learners.

Principle #5: The teacher uses an understanding of individual and group motivation and behavior to create a learning environment that encourages positive social interaction, active engagement in learning, and self-motivation.

Principle #6: The teacher uses knowledge of effective verbal, nonverbal, and media communication techniques to foster active inquiry, collaboration, and supportive interaction in the classroom.

Principle #9: The teacher is a reflective practitioner who continually evaluates the effects of his/her choices and actions on others (students, parents, and other professionals in the learning community) and who actively seeks out opportunities to grow professionally.

Principle #10: The teacher fosters relationships with school colleagues, parents, and agencies in the larger community to support students' learning and well-being.

Class Participation Guidelines
(10% of Grade)

Foundations of Multicultural Education is based on a pedagogy of transformation and a social constructivist theory of learning. This means that learning occurs through human interaction, resulting in the construction of knowledge and the eventual transformation of learners through ongoing reflection and praxis. Within this approach, the active participation and engagement of students in class discussions is critical.

Expectations

During all forms of participation, please keep in mind the following expectations (and others you and your colleagues may decide to add):

- Listen actively and thoughtfully—consider perspectives different from your own
- Speak from your own experience or from the readings—avoid interpreting for others
- Respectfully challenge the ideas of others: criticize the idea – not the person
- Welcome diverse views
- Everyone who wishes gets a chance to participate—encourage and invite each group member to join in and avoid dominating the discussion

Classroom Participation

You are expected to complete all readings prior to class, attend every class session, arrive on time, and actively engage in thoughtful and respectful dialogue with others. Given that most issues have more than one possible answer, we will develop and use a variety of strategies to seek the best solutions. Knowledge construction and personal transformation are processes. As the session progresses, you will be expected to examine your pre-existing beliefs and opinions critically and to reconstruct your own conceptual framework based on the readings, experiential projects, and reflective practice.

Attendance: If you are unable to attend class, please notify me as soon as possible. Absences due to illness, accident, or family crisis are considered excused at my discretion. Students with excused absences should arrange an alternative assignment in lieu of class participation (e.g. an additional 3-4 page reflective response to the week’s readings).

Tardies: Please notify me by email if you anticipate being late to class. If you foresee difficulties in consistently arriving on time (e.g., due to job, family commitments, etc.), please discuss your situation with me early in the session.
Reflective Personal Development Paper
(20% of Grade)
September 23, 2009

You will write a narrative essay about your life, describing the experiences that have shaped your views of race, culture, and diversity and how your life experiences, perceptions, education, and family background have led to your current ideas about learning and teaching diverse student populations.

In this paper, you will explore:
- Your identity as a learner
- How this affects your potential as a teacher
- Your identity as a member of a particular cultural/racial/ethnic group

By researching and studying your own family background, it is possible to gain an appreciation about ways in which we share many similarities and differences. As a brief introductory section to this assignment, try to gather as much information as you can about your family background including religious affiliation, ethnicity, culture, language(s), country of origin, education/occupation and any other information you think is of interest and value.

Then reflect on your own experiences in terms of your cultural reference(s), your family background, your interactions with others unlike yourself, and other factors determined by your upbringing and other circumstances.

Include SPECIFIC EXAMPLES OF EVENTS AND SITUATIONS that you feel shaped your views on these areas. Be sure to situate your examples in the context of assumptions about schooling and education. To the extent possible, relate your experiences to the theory and praxis in readings, class discussions, and activities. Be prepared to discuss your assignment within a larger class dialogue on Wednesday, September 30, 2009.

Project Objective

1. To provide you with an opportunity to explore who you are as it relates to your potential as a future educator in the U.S.’s increasingly diverse and heterogeneous classrooms.
2. To critically explore and actively engage your self-identity, cultural assumptions, and life experiences that shaped your cultural premises.
3. To help you learn, understand, and use the major concepts, theories, and research related to the nature and structure of culture to construct learning environments that support the development and content area achievement of culturally and linguistically diverse students.

Scope

Brainstorm upon your own PK- 16 educational background, experiences, and environments from a multicultural and diverse viewpoint.

Write a 5-to-6 page paper recapturing your recollections and emphasizing your experiences with cultural diversity as a student in elementary and secondary school and higher education.

Some Suggested Questions You May Want to Ask Yourself

- What messages did I receive growing up about what it meant to be a member of my gender, racial/ethnic, and religious group, and socioeconomic class, etc.? How have these messages—or later life situations that challenged them—informed the way I interact with others, including students, parents, colleagues, either in or out of my group?
• Have I been encouraged (or compelled) to think about issues like privilege, racism, classism, sexism, sexual orientation, homophobia, xenophobia, etc.? If so, how has my teaching and learning been shaped or influenced by those experiences? If not, how has the lack of consideration of these issues informed my teaching and learning?
• What are some of the issues and “–isms” with which I still struggle? What are some of my stereotypes or prejudices? How might I confront them?
• What life experiences, or dimensions of my identity, give me a unique insight into multicultural issues?
• What media sources currently influence my worldviews? What news sources do I trust?

Challenges

Try to think deeply about the parts of your identity that put you in a privileged group (whiteness for race, maleness for gender, heterosexuality for sexual orientation, upper middle class for socioeconomic status, etc.) and the inequities associated with those areas. Challenge yourself. Use this as an opportunity to practice and model self-criticism.

NCATE-TESOL’s Second Domain - Culture
Bridging the Divide: Culturally Diverse Families in Our Schools

Project Guidelines

Parental, Family, and Community Involvement
A Scholarship of Engagement

Community-Based Service-Learning Field Experience
(40 % of Grade)

Group Presentations: November 18, 2009

Objectives of Group Field Project & Presentation Component:
TESOL’s Second Domain – Culture

Overall theme: Understanding the perspectives of families regarding their experiences with education and schooling in the United States.

As a culminating activity for EDUC 537, Bridging the Divide engages students in a performance-based assessment task.

Each student or pair of students will gather data and engage in a constructive dialogue with a first or second-generation immigrant family with children who are English language learners (ELLs). You will learn about their lives, backgrounds, values and dreams with a particular emphasis on their experiences with the U.S. educational system.

Goals

This project will facilitate:

a. Meeting with culturally and linguistically diverse parents and/or guardians who have children enrolled in our public schools;
b. Focusing on multicultural education and social justice issues by engaging in dialogue with the families and communities of PK-12 students;
c. Giving you an opportunity to examine a parent’s view of authentic parental involvement;
d. Finding and recommending culturally appropriate classroom/school applications.

If possible, conduct these interventions in the family’s home. Try to include in the dialogue parents/guardians, other adults living in the home, and children. Doing so may help break through the affective social filter and allow for a better understanding of the family context.

A walk through the neighborhood can also be an enriching experience for you to better understand the context of the community. Spend some time walking around their neighborhood gathering data (e.g., talking to its residents, taking photographs, and making observations). Try to be as keen an observer as possible. Search for cultural artifacts (e.g., signage, storefronts, advertisements, etc.). Ask many questions and make sure to record everything in your journals.
Interview Protocol

Step One

Each individual (or pair) will develop an interview protocol. The protocols are organized sets of questions used to guide the interview and keep the interview flowing in a conversational manner. Good interview protocols consist primarily of open-ended questions that invite participants to engage in storytelling. Avoid questions that elicit only yes/no or very short answers (e.g., “Did you go to school?”) in favor of questions that encourage longer responses (e.g., “Tell me about your childhood back home. What was your school like?”) Use prompts to get participants to keep talking (e.g., “Tell me more about that” or “How did that make you feel?”)

Suggested types of information you will need to collect from either direct observation and/or your interview protocol:

a. Physical characteristics of the home (if interviews are conducted in the home);
b. Community characteristics;
c. Demographic/background information;
d. Educational background of parents; ages and grades of the children;
e. Immigration experience (How/why they decide to come to the U.S.? What was it like?);
f. Childrearing practices and philosophy;
g. Economic/work issues;
h. Funds of Knowledge (Luis Moll);
i. Perspectives on education: What is a well-educated child? What are the roles of families and schools in children’s education?
j. Experiences with children’s school(s): Types of support they have received;
k. Misunderstandings, difficulties and challenges and how they have handled them;
l. What do these families want their children’s teachers and administrators to know about them and their children?

Step Two

a. Take a walk through the neighborhood. How is it similar/different from your own neighborhood? What languages do you hear? What cultural, class, racial and religious contextual clues do you observe? How would it “feel” for a family to live here? Search for “cultural artifacts” (e.g., community centers, libraries, storefronts, places of worship, signs, and spaces) and what they represent to its residents. As you explore, take photographs and record your observations in your journal.

b. Interview a family from a racial, linguistic, and socioeconomic background different from your own. If possible, conduct the interview in the family’s home. Find out about the cultural, educational, linguistic background of the people you are interviewing. Be sure to identify the participants by who? what? when? where? and why. You may want to tape record the interview (be sure to get signed permission from the family—a sample form will be distributed in class). Take a few pictures if the family feels comfortable.
Step Three

If working with a partner, meet to review and discuss your field notes, photographs, and tape recording. Before listening to your recording for the first time, share your initial impressions of this family. What surprised you? What moved you? How does this family’s story change your understanding of multicultural education, diversity, social justice, and family involvement in schools?

Listen to the entire interview together. Note interesting information, stories, or quotes that strike you. Share your thoughts with the rest of the group.

Decide on the next steps. How will you pick out the most salient quotations to transcribe (you do not have to transcribe the entire tape)? Who will transcribe the tape recording? How will you analyze the data? How will you collaborate in analyzing and writing up your findings? If meeting with your partner, decide when and how often will you meet again? Be sure to record group member responsibilities and roles.

Step Four

Groups will coauthor and carefully edit a written report of their project. The last section of the report must include a personal reflection (250 words) written by each group member. Please develop a short PowerPoint to help present your report.

Suggested Format for Final Written Report

Introduction (~½ - 1 p.)

Part I: Findings

When writing this section, try to place yourself in this family’s shoes in order to understand how they have constructed meaning from their experiences. Explore their views about immigrating to the United States, educating their children, and engaging with the educational system.

Include the following:

A. Setting (~½ - 1 p.)
   1. Describe the setting in which the dialogue took place.
   2. Describe the neighborhood and reflections about your walk-through.

B. Family Background (~2 - 4 pp.)
   1. Explain why this family was chosen for this study.
      a. Provide a brief history of the family.
      b. Ages, places of birth, countries and cities where they have lived, and ages of children when immigrated.
   2. Social, economic, educational, and personal backgrounds.
   3. Immigration (first, second generation) experience. Relatives in the area?
   4. Funds of knowledge, cultural competencies, difficulties encountered (e.g., prejudice, discrimination).

C. The educational experience from the family’s perspectives about education.
   1. Family’s experiences enrolling and supporting their children in U. S. schools? Interactions with teachers and administrators? Problems encountered? Support received? What is working? What is not working? If relevant, contrast the way things are done “here” with the way things are done “back home.”
Part II: Analysis (3 - 5 pp.)

Analyze and interpret your research findings using theory and research from our readings on multicultural education and social justice. This section should integrate multiple themes addressed in this class and should be grounded in a coherent, thoughtful, and thoroughly developed theoretical framework. When citing course readings, please follow APA (5th edition) format guidelines.

Part III: Conclusions and Recommendations (1 – 2 pp.).

What is the meaning of this study? Prior to conducting this study, what did you expect to find about family involvement and culturally and linguistically diverse (CLD) families? How did your assumptions and beliefs change as a result of this experience? What did you learn that is important for future PK-12 teachers to know?

Based on your findings, as well as related theory and research, what recommendations do you have to improve programs for CLD families? Provide specific, concrete examples of things teachers and schools can do to:

a. Improve the understanding of faculty and staff about CLD families;
b. Proactively develop stronger school-family partnerships;
c. Make their schools and classrooms more welcoming places for CLD & non-native English speaking families and connect students’ funds of knowledge to instruction.

Part IV: Personal Reflections/Conventions (~1 p. each).

Each group member will write an individual reflection. Explain what you learned through this project. What did this project mean to you? How have your knowledge and understanding changed? What assumptions were broken, and what new connections have you made? How will you use this learning in your future practice?

Presentation Guidelines

- Both team members should participate in the presentation
- Provide a very short handout that outlines the highlights (principal findings and recommendations) of your presentation with the salient points clearly noted.
- Presentation Time: 15 - 20 minutes + 10 min. Q & A It is a group responsibility to practice and time the presentation and Q & A session: Presentations that are more than 5 minutes long or short will have the grade reduced appropriately (please refer to the grading rubric).

Overall theme: Teaching for Social Justice and Equity: Championing the Cause

Introduction

Today teacher education stands at a crossroads. Colleges, traditionally committed to multicultural teacher education, are making a compelling argument for the necessity to adopt a social justice perspective across the board. To do this, teacher educators must involve themselves in a critical analysis that questions issues of power and privilege, race and culture, social class, language oppression, and literacy practices in their academic units and classrooms. This critical reflection will help EDUC 537 students develop a conceptual language that will allow them to discuss and facilitate an authentic engagement in these issues.

At GMU we believe that it is important for all PK-12 teachers to become multiculturally competent, committed to social justice and equity in education, and prepared to practice from a base that includes national and international perspectives. This course is organized around Paulo Freire's ideas of education for liberation and other constructs of critical pedagogy and multicultural education. It focuses on social reconstruction through classroom action and on accessing community funds of knowledge as resources.

Main Objectives

a. Introduce manifestations of social and school-based inequities and forms of oppression such as racism, ethnocentrism, sexism, classism, ableism, linguicism, heterosexism, religious oppression, and others, as most relevant in your context.
b. Encourage participants in using the conceptual frameworks and theories of multicultural education to explain teaching behaviors and policy-making that either encourages or hinders educational equity and social justice throughout the educational process.
c. Assist participants in relating multicultural education theories and research to their own professional practice.
d. Help participants reflect on the applicability and implications of the politics of equity and social justice for individual practice, educational organizations, and policy.
e. Guide participants in understanding of the multiple, often competing, goals of public schooling, how these goals have evolved historically, and how they presently impact our democratic society.

Additional instructions and details available on the TaskStream site

Powerpoint

- Follow good presentation and powerpoint etiquette. (Search for this term if you need clarification.)
- The powerpoint slides should guide your facilitation of the presentation.
- Your presentation be active and engaging.
- The full presentation should last approximately one hour.

Detailed notes for speaker

- Describe preferred room arrangement
- Describe and list materials to be prepared in advance (e.g., handouts, tools for grouping, etc.)
- Each slide should have a script.
- Each slide should have additional information on the subject in the event of questions from the audience. Include direct quotes from literature used in this course along with citations. (e.g., “Geneva Gay, an expert on culturally responsive pedagogy, writes that, “Both the content and processes of education should be changed to reflect cultural diversity” (retrieved on August 22, 2009, from http://www.ncrel.org/sdrs/areas/issues/educatrs/leaderhp/le0gay.htm )
- Each slide should have notes to explain your use of materials. (e.g., pass out note cards, have participants stand, etc.)
- Each slide should have approximate time (e.g., two minutes, a half hour, etc.)
- Mark/ identify which slides/ sections can be skipped if time runs out.
- Include extra activities or discussion questions and structures if extra time remains.

Handout for participants (not a photocopy of slides) (4-6 pages)

- The handout should include key points from your presentation.
- May include a note-taking section.
- You must include an annotated bibliography of approximately 10 readings, resources, websites, or videos you drew most heavily in the presentation. At least eight must be readings.
  - Use APA format
  - Include a brief summary of the article, website or video (1-2 sentences)
  - Briefly explain why this resource would be of interest or value to participants
