Course Description
This course provides a survey of current knowledge on individuals with disabilities within the context of human growth and development across the life span. Content includes historical factors, legislation, etiology, characteristics, needs, educational strategies, including existing and emerging technologies, assessment, and support services of/for individuals with disabilities ranging from mild, moderate to severe levels of varying disabilities. The course will study the impact of disabilities on academic and social/emotional performances. Field experience is required. Prerequisites: none.

Student Outcomes
Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:
• Describe how educators and other professionals determine the difference between “normal” and “atypical” behaviors.
• Describe the legal and historical development of the field of special education.
• Describe various theoretical models and perspectives in the field of special education.
• Describe research in etiological factors associated with all disability areas.
• Describe social, cognitive, intellectual, and academic characteristics associated with all disability areas.
• Describe historical points of view and contribution of culturally diverse groups to the field of special education.
• Describe the role of families in the educational process.
• Discuss issues and trends in special education, including legislation and litigation, and use of innovative technology.

Relationship of Courses to Program Goals and Professional Organizations
EDSE 501 is part of the George Mason University, Graduate School of Education, and Special Education Program for teacher licensure in the Commonwealth of Virginia in the area of special education. The program aligns with the standards for teacher licensure established by the Council for Exceptional Children, the major special education professional organization in the United States. As such the curriculum for the course includes competencies for teaching students with disabilities from preschool through grade 12.

CEC standards that will be addressed in this class include some of the following:

ASSIGNMENTS
Students are required to read the assigned chapter and any other reading ahead of time in order to participate in class discussions and activities.

All assignments are to be typed, using APA style. For more information on APA style, refer to the manual or go to www.apastyle.org/previoustips.html.

In order for students to receive timely feedback, late work will not be accepted. However, students have the opportunity to redo any assignment.

I understand that you have other obligations; however, our time for learning is limited. If you must miss class for any reason, you will be required to submit one page of reflection on the previous class’s topic, required readings, or research on the topic missed for each hour of class missed.

It is recommended that students retain copies of all course products to document their progress through the GSE special education program. Products from this class can become part of your individual professional portfolio used in your portfolio classes that documents your satisfactory progress through the GSE program and the CEC performance based standards.
