COURSE DESCRIPTION

Covers biological, behavioral, and sociocultural factors in human sexual behavior.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

At the completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Develop a solid basic understanding of biological, social, and psychological components of their human sexuality.
2. Form and express educated attitudes and viewpoints on several aspects of human sexuality through the interpretation of readings, lectures, guest speakers, and open discussion with peers.
3. Form and express rational and responsible decisions concerning their human sexuality and development.
4. Write and discuss the value of human sexuality education with professional teachers as well as the community.

COURSE OVERVIEW

This course relies, in part, on the use of explicit visual teaching aids such as slides, films and video clips. These materials may portray nudity, masturbation, and examples of sexual behavior. Every effort is made to present those materials in a mature and scientific manner. A person who would be offended by frank discussions and/or visual portrayals of human sexual behavior may not be a good candidate for this class.

Students are expected to conduct themselves in a manner appropriate to a college classroom. Any student whose behavior is inappropriate or destructive to the learning environment will be asked to leave the class.

CLASSROOM POLICIES

- Please be on time to class. If you need to come in late- please do so quietly as to not disrupt others. It is expected that you attend all classes. Failure to attend may result in missed points that may result in a lower course grade. Athletes who may need to miss classes for university approved games and travel must submit a schedule in writing to the Instructor to be excused. All other class absences must be submitted in writing to the Instructor to be considered as excused.
- This class has a REQUIRED Blackboard component. It is important that you check Blackboard for important announcements, assignments and to access the midterm and final exam.
- Weather related announcements for class will be posted on the Blackboard page and emailed through Blackboard. It may be helpful to forward your Blackboard email to an account you frequently check.

- Be an active participant- listen, ask questions, and share ideas. It is your participation that will help to make this class more valuable. Sleeping in class is not a form of participation and you will be asked to leave.
- Please create a safe environment for people to openly communicate.
- Respect that each person is entitled to their own belief system.
- Complete all assignments on time. All written assignments are due at the beginning of class. Work must be submitted through Blackboard or turned in at the start of class as a hard copy. Late assignments will be accepted with points deducted for each day the assignment is late and must be emailed to the Instructor. If you miss class on a day when an assignment is due please note that the assignment MUST be received by the Instructor through Blackboard prior to the start of class or points will be deducted.
- Type, spell check and proofread all papers. All papers must be typed with a font size of 12 points and a margin of 1 inch. All work must be double-spaced. Papers that are not in this format will receive a deduction in points. Grading rubrics for each assignment will be posted on Blackboard.
- All work in this class must be your own. Use appropriate citation in work that is referenced.
- You may bring food and drink items to class, but please take all trash with you at the end of the class and dispose of properly.
- Cell phones must be muted or turned off during class. Please do not answer any calls in class or send/read any text messages. Video recording or taking pictures of any lecture is only allowed with the approval of the Instructor. Audio recording of lectures is allowed.
- Laptops are allowed in class to take notes on the lectures. If having a laptop in class is a possible source of distraction please reconsider bringing the laptop to class.
- To facilitate positive class discussions the class will develop and agree on a set of “ground rules” for the discussions that will occur throughout the semester. These “ground rules” will be added to the Blackboard page once they have been agreed upon and will be utilized for all class discussions.

Assignments: There will be 3 assignments due in the course. Details for each assignment will be provided in Blackboard. Assignments will include reviewing internet sites, watching television clips and analyzing the content, and informally interviewing 2-3 people and analyzing the responses.

Movie Review: Each student will be required to watch one of the films suggested throughout the textbook and submit a 3-4 page review analyzing the film and providing responses to the questions posted in Blackboard. This review is a critical evaluation of the messages regarding sexuality and sex roles. The review is NOT a summary of the movie.

In class reflection: Throughout the course there will be at least 5 opportunities for written reflection. This is a way to share your feedback about the topics discussed and ask any remaining questions you may have. These are your thoughts! These reflections may occur in the middle of the class or at the end of class. These reflections are NOT scheduled and can occur at any time throughout the semester. There will NOT be opportunities to make-up these reflections so attendance is critical.

Bonus Points: Students may work in pairs to each receive up to 5 additional points (per person) by developing up to a 3 minute recorded commercial. The commercial should address the question of “Why should someone take the Human Sexuality class at George Mason?” Commercials are due to the Instructor one week prior to the end of the semester. The commercial must be educational, creative and provide correct information. Any person (including the student) who is in the video must provide written permission to be recorded. In addition, the consent form should address if the video can be shown to current/future classes. Sample consent forms will be provided in Blackboard.

Grading Scale

This course will be graded on a point system, with a total of 185 possible points. Students may earn up to 185 points, but the course will only be graded out of 180 points to account for the bonus points. The final grade will be determined based on the following point scale.
