COURSE DESCRIPTION

Applies research-based models and theories of health assessment and promotion at individual, organizational, agency, and community levels. Uses communication approaches and skills in context of behavior change strategies, including policy and program development.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By completion of the course, students should be able to:

1. Incorporate theories and models of health assessment, including health belief, stages of change, social learning, diffusion of innovations, and organization change and apply to health communication.
2. Define program planning strategies helpful for preparing organizational and communitywide initiatives.
3. Implement communication strategies of media relations, media advocacy, social marketing, and counteradvertising.
4. Utilize the health communications processes model to design a range of communication initiatives, including public service announcements, advertising, campaigns, promotions, and sponsorship.
5. Implement evaluation design strategies in the planning, implementation and review of components of communication strategy implementation.
6. Assist individuals and organizations in collaborative problem-solving, conflict resolution and solution-finding as they prepare health assessment, health education, and health communications initiatives.
7. Design and implement a communications product with specific objective, resources, and evaluation.
8. Describe how policy and legislative processes are used, and can be used, to make determinations regarding health education and health communication.
9. Prepare and conduct selective in-service training programs for targeted groups.
10. Articulate clearly program needs, strategies, resources, and accomplishments for specific health initiatives.

COURSE OVERVIEW

This interactive course blends theoretical and applied approaches for communicating effectively about health issues. Classes will incorporate a variety of methodologies, including lecture, discussion, applied projects, reading reactions, and class interaction. The assignments and discussions are primarily applied in nature. Participation in all aspects of the course – attendance, active participation in class discussions, and completion of all assignments - is expected to gain the breadth of content and achieve course objectives. Readings and assignments are due on the specified date in the syllabus.

A- = 350 - 359	B = 310 - 339	C = 250 - 289	F = 0 - 199
	B- = 300 - 309	C- = 230 - 249

Requirements:

Communications Strategy Review	25 points
Individual Products (3 @ 25)	75 points
Topical Communications Campaign	50 points
Training / Seminar Presentation	50 points
Campus Health Awareness Events	25 points
Assignments	50 points
Final Examination	75 points
Participation	50 points

Communications Strategy Review

Examine at least 100 advertisements for products or services from one cluster of media communications (a cluster may include, but is not limited to: news media, print advertising, radio/TV advertising, placements, marketing approaches, internet and web). Prepare a 5-10 page paper that reviews (a) common and unique approaches and strategies; (b) hypotheses/assumptions used; (c) appropriateness for target audience(s); (d) your reactions and assessment; and (e) how these insights can be used with health and safety topics.

Individual Products (3)

Design three distinct health/safety products suitable for a communications initiative. The first item is a brochure; the second and third can be a poster series, newsletter, calendar, radio PSAs, a TV PSA, media presentation, newspaper series, billboard, or other strategy. Also submit a paper describing background work, underlying theory, rationale for decisions and preparation work. See grading rubric for further details.

Topical Communications Campaign

Design a communications campaign suitable for implementation, including at least eight varied materials and approaches. Campaign elements typically include print materials, public service announcements, fliers, fact sheets, brochures, news releases, and additional resources. If incorporating others' materials (e.g., fact sheets, resources), clearly identify with reference notation on the item and in the written description. Include a written description describing theory and background, needs assessments, strategy selection, pilot testing, and evaluation. Prepare this as if it is being sent to a specific intermediary (e.g., community leader, agency head, school principal) for implementation. See grading rubric for content elements and grading details.

Training / Seminar Presentation

Working alone or in a small group, plan, design, and implement a segment of a training or seminar session to prepare a designated audience on a health or safety issue. This will incorporate communication strategies from the projects and campaign assignments, as well as other strategies as deemed appropriate. Grading is based on individual roles, participation, collaboration, and quality of final paper (documenting the background, preparation, and rationale for presentation content). Group presentations are 12-15 minutes; individual sessions are 5-7 minutes.

Campus Health Awareness Events

Please attend two of the health and safety events offered by Mason during the semester (such as Health Expo, Alcohol awareness, Breastival, HIV/AIDS awareness, violence prevention). Attend to the marketing, organization and program implementation, and prepare a 5 page paper which summarizes your observations and recommendations from a health communication perspective.

Assignments

Assignments will be incorporated throughout the semester. These will emerge from the reading assignments, class discussions, and current health communication efforts. These will be based on a review, synthesis and application of course content. Typically, these will be brief, with a 5-10 point score.
