3. Prerequisites: Admission to PhD program, or permission of instructor.

4. Course Description (as noted in Catalog):

Examines theories and research from educational anthropology and educational sociology to clarify and address contemporary educational issues and concerns. Focuses on U.S. public schools, with comparative materials from other educational settings and societies.

Expanded Course Description:

- Emphasis on multilingual, multicultural, intercultural, cross-cultural, transnational and diaspora studies in local and international contexts
- Critical theory and cultural studies
• The media’s influence on culture, education, and society.
• The impact of standardization and accountability on education with respect to culture and diversity
• Reflections on participant perspectives, theoretical frameworks, research, through post-formal, critical race, feminist and womanist, post-colonial, and post-
structural lenses
• Developing critical literacy through written and oral presentations

5. Course Learning Outcomes or Objectives:

• Analyze theories of culture, including acquisition and transmission of language, literacy and culture, cultural reproduction and cultural capital for understanding schooling and its outcomes in a globalized world.
• Examine anthropological theory and research in relationship to educational practice integrating discussion of CEHD Core values (social justice, research-based practice, ethical leadership, innovation and collaboration) and diverse disciplinary tools from area studies, ethnic studies, and women’s studies.
• Demonstrate the variety and complexity of language, culture and power through sociolinguistic and critical discourse analysis
• Situate one’s own experience in multiple contexts-political, economic, social, and personal.
• Uncover “hidden codes” promoted by interests within and external to education.
• Promote critical literacy involving writing, reading, presentations, organization, and research skills.
• Provide evidence of awareness of race/ethnicity and identity, linguistic variety, social class, gender, and sexual identity in relation to education and schooling in U.S. and international contexts through a focus on immigration and immigrant communities.
• Examine how foundational influences in U.S. education might be enhanced with international perspectives from Asia, Africa, Europe, Latin America and the Caribbean, Australia and South Pacific.

6. Professional Standards:

EDCI 893-001 meets the following NCATE/TESOL Standards for Teacher Preparation
(pp. 39-40):

“Domain 2. Culture

Candidates know, understand, and use major concepts, principles, theories, and research related to the nature and role of culture and cultural groups to construct supportive learning environments for ELLs.

Standard 2. Culture as It Affects Student Learning
Candidates know, understand, and use major theories and research related to the nature and role of culture in their instruction. They demonstrate understanding of how cultural groups and individual cultural identities affect language learning and school achievement.

Candidates recognize that language and culture interact in the formation of students’ cultural identities. They further recognize that students’ identities are tied closely to their sense of self-worth, which is correlated to their academic achievement. Candidates know that all students can learn more readily when cultural factors are recognized, respected, and accommodated, and they demonstrate that knowledge in their practice. They further understand that students’ academic achievement can suffer if classroom instruction does not respect students’ cultural identities.

Candidates address cross-cultural conflicts, such as stereotyping and bullying, using a combination of cultural appreciation techniques and conflict resolution strategies.

Candidates use information about their students’ backgrounds to choose appropriate and effective teaching techniques. They use their knowledge of cultural diversity to foster critical thinking and improve student achievement.

The nature and role of culture encompasses such factors as cultural relativism, cultural universalism, the additive nature of culture, intra- and intergroup differences, the interrelationship between language and culture, and the effect of this relationship on learning. It also recognizes the various stages of acculturation and assimilation. Taking these and other factors into account, candidates design lessons that embed instruction in the appropriate cultural context.

The content of a culture includes values, beliefs, and expectations; roles and status; family structure, function, and socialization; humanities and the arts; assumptions about literacy and other content areas; communication and communication systems; and learning styles and modalities. From this knowledge base, candidates design culturally appropriate learning environments and instruction.

Candidates understand the importance of the home culture and involve ESOL families and community members in students’ learning. They understand that multicultural inquiries and interactions among students and colleagues foster critical discourse, systemic discovery, and multiplicity in approaches to academics.”

7. Nature of Course Delivery

   The course is a face to face seminar which includes:

   - Presentations (i.e., mini-lectures assisted by PowerPoint or other visuals);
   - Discussions (i.e., engaging students in discussing course content and relevant content from other sources);
Cooperative learning (i.e., small group structures emphasizing learning from and with others);
Collaborative learning (i.e., heterogeneous in an interdisciplinary context);
Student presentations (i.e., focusing on peer learning and exchange of resources);
Video presentations (i.e., utilizing multiple modes of learning)

8. Course Assignments (aligned with outcomes/objectives)
Assignment Descriptions, Assignment weighting (percentage/points),

1) Annotated Bibliography on Language and Culture in your area of specialization 25 points
   3-5 page paper (Due Feb. 27th)
   15-25 entries.

2) Presentation on leading the discussion on a Required Text: 30 Points

3) Final Project (Choose one): 35 Points
   A) The Influence of the Media on Culture and Schooling Project: Analysis of media source such as children/adolescent film, children/adolescent programming, print/visual images and text, videos, games or other examples from popular culture

   Much has been written about the nature and influence of the media and popular culture on our overall culture and schooling. In addition, the discipline of cultural studies has critiqued the inordinate influence of the media over the visible and hidden curriculum of school. The purpose of this activity is to develop critical media literacy skills that will facilitate the critical interrogation of culture and the media’s influence on schooling and society. Your task is to identify a media source, critique it, and make a formal presentation to the class using the artifact to support your analysis. The presentation of your project should be both experiential as well as include a synopsis of your findings.

   - Identify your topic, identify sources of information with respect to the communities and social and cultural identities involved in the interpretation of the artifact and indicate the criteria, aspects or elements of culture, you are used to interpret the artifact. (10 points)
   - Identify the overt, basic, or easily recognizable messages to the artifact (5 points).
   - Identify the hidden messages that are conveyed about culture, the media, and education (5 points).
   - Provide an annotated list of resources for researchers and practitioners in your area of specialization (5 points)
• Present your conclusions. What does this artifact say about the media, culture, and education? What does your analysis suggest for transforming educational policies and practices with respect to racism and other constructions of difference? (10 points)

B) Professional/Scholarly Conference Proposal, Paper and/or Report on Conference or Book Review for Scholarly or Professional Publication (10-12 pages not including appendices or references)

1. Reflect on how your membership in various professional and scholarly associations will benefit from participating in professional development opportunities and conferences. Provide a rationale for your choice of assignment. (Research, Policies and Practices) (5 points)

2. Investigate the Genre(s) for presentations: a) Conference Attach the call for participation for this conference (including theme, requirements and deadline). Identify the interest sections or divisions relating to your research interests. Provide a sample of a conference proposal. Discuss who you asked for advice. Attach sample conference reviews or book reviews or Call for authors. b) Journal or other serial publication: attach a model review of a conference or book and submission requirements. (5 points)

3. Collaboration: How can you use this conference to develop collaboration with classmates, other faculty, colleagues with whom you work to develop expertise through interdisciplinary work? (5 points)

4. The conference proposal/review or book review speaks to the particular discourse community effectively. (5 points)

5. Reflections on the value of this assignment for developing one’s research interests. (5 points)

6. Reflection on the value of this assignment for addressing educational policy and practices in your field(s) of specialization. (5 points)

7. The appendix includes an annotated list of resources for future reading/investigation: Conferences, journals, key scholars for summer reading list.(5 points)
B. Performance based assessment:

Assessment for the assignments is performance based involving active participation in all class sessions.

Class Participation:

Collaboration is a cornerstone for this course. Students are expected to participate in a lively, professional, punctual, and equitable manner in all collaborative work. A high level of professional behavior includes being fully engaged for the duration of the class, sharing resources, reflections on the readings and insights. Students are expected to refrain from text-messaging, surfing the web and emailing during class.

Attendance: Missed Classes

Due to the collaborative nature of the class sessions, the reflective nature of the course assignments, and the interrelated and cumulative sequence of activities, students are required to be present at each class. Each absence (not including Back to School nights as teacher or parent) will result in a grade reduction. For example, one absence will lower a grade from an “A” to an “A-“. The second absence will lower the grade from an “A” to a “B+“. The third absence will lower the grade from a “B+” to a “C”. More than three missed classes will result in a failing grade for the course.

Tardiness:

Students are expected to arrive on time. After two late arrivals (10 minutes) to class, each subsequent late arrival will result in a grade reduction. For instance, a third late arrival will lower the grade from an “A” to an “A-“. The fourth will lower the grade from an “A-” to a “B+”; and so forth.

Late Assignments:

If class must be missed, prior to the absence the student must contact the professor and submit any work that is due during an absence either electronically or in person as agreed. All assignments are due on the assigned date. Late assignments will receive a 20% penalty for each missed deadline.

C: Criteria for Evaluation:

The seminar format of EDUC 893 requires the active participation of all students. It is critical that all students keep up with the readings, journal entries and actively participate in class. As doctoral level students it is also expected that you will explore alternative media, video, and film sources, as well as read broadly from resources beyond the required readings in order that you might gain understanding of these elements on educational anthropology and educational sociology. You are especially encouraged to investigate research and theory that investigates the impact of historical trends as well as social and political movements on culture and education. Please be prepared to share your thoughts and reactions to these additional works. In general, students always should be prepared to discuss the content readings, respond to the questions of the instructor and other students, as well as to ask questions for clarification, exploration, or discussion.

D. GRADING SCALE:
1. Students are expected to complete all readings assigned for each class, and to contribute in a knowledgeable and professional manner on each assignment.
2. All assignments are due on the assigned date. Late assignments will receive a 20% penalty for each missed deadline. If an assignment is late, another deadline will immediately be given. All assignments are due by the last class. No assignments will be accepted after the last class. No arrangements can be made to extend the course beyond the last class meeting.
3. Incomplete assignments will receive zero points.
4. Resubmission of an assignment is not a right. No resubmissions will be accepted without the pre-approval of the professor through conferencing. When a resubmission is granted the grade for the assignment will be the average of the two scores, not the higher score. Before requesting permission to resubmit an assignment, students must show evidence of having read and reflected upon the professor’s evaluation feedback.

Interpreting Your Grades:
The mark of A denotes excellent mastery of the subject through work that reflects effort beyond basic requirements. This means work that does not require revision. It denotes outstanding scholarship. It represents internalization and the creative use of the principles underlying instruction. The mark of B denotes good mastery of the subject through work that addresses all of the requirements. It reflects an understanding of and the ability to apply principles underlying instruction. The mark of C denotes satisfactory mastery of the subject through work that addresses the basic requirements. It reflects successful completion of all assigned work. The mark of F denotes failure to understand the subject and denotes unsatisfactory performance.

(Final course grade is based on the percentage of total points earned and in accordance with GMU policy.)

Graduate Academic Standards, Grades:
University course work is measured in terms of quantity and quality. A credit normally represents one hour per week of lecture or recitation or not fewer than two hours per week of laboratory work throughout a semester. The number of credits is a measure of quantity. The grade is a measure of quality. The University-wide system for grading graduate courses is as follows:

<table>

* Note: GSE students are advised that, although a B- is a satisfactory grade for a course, students must maintain a 3.0 average in their degree program and present a 3.0 GPA on the courses listed on the graduation application. Students' performance will be evaluated using letter grades.

9. George Mason University Policies and Resources for Students
   a. Academic integrity (honor code, plagiarism*) – Students must adhere to guidelines of the George Mason University Honor Code [See http://academicintegrity.gmu.edu/honorcode/].
   b. Mason Email – Students are responsible for the content of university communications sent to their George Mason University email account and are required to activate their account and check it regularly. All communication from the university, college, school, division, and program will be sent to students solely through their Mason email account. Students must follow the university policy for Responsible Use of Computing [See http://universitypolicy.gmu.edu/1301ge.html].
   c. Counseling and Psychological Services – The George Mason University Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) staff consists of professional counseling and clinical psychologists, social workers, and counselors who offer a wide range of services (e.g., individual and group counseling, workshops, and outreach programs) to enhance students’ personal experience and academic performance [See http://caps.gmu.edu/].
d. Office of Disability Services – Students with disabilities who seek accommodations in a course must be registered with the George Mason University Office of Disability Services (ODS) and inform their instructor in writing at the beginning of the semester http://ods.gmu.edu/.
e. Students must follow the university policy stating that all sound emitting devices shall be turned off during class unless otherwise authorized by the instructor.
f. The Writing Center (Optional Resource) – The George Mason University Writing Center staff provides a variety of resources and services (e.g., tutoring, workshops, writing guides, handbooks) intended to support students as they work to construct and share knowledge through writing [See http://writingcenter.gmu.edu/].
g. University Libraries (Optional Resource) – The George Mason University Libraries provide numerous services, research tools, and help with using the library resources [See http://library.gmu.edu/].

2. Core Values Commitment: The College of Education and Human Development is committed to collaboration, ethical leadership, innovation, research-based practice, and social justice. (See logo below.)

Professional Standards and CEHD Core Values

In 2006, the College of Education and Human Development (CEHD) adopted five core values on which to focus: collaboration, ethical leadership, innovation, research-based practice and social justice. This course supports each of these values by providing multiple learning experiences that necessitate collaboration. Students are afforded opportunities to reflect on their leadership roles in their work as researchers and educational practitioners in their work and learning contexts; to utilize discourse analysis to design and engage in innovative research and improve classroom practice, particularly with respect to examining the ethics of research and social justice.

CRITERIA

1. The presenters presented background on the author and the book to locate her/his work in historical context/reveal significance of the scholarly contributions.

2. The presentation revealed some personal stances/experience/significance to the reading. The unique voice of the participants came through. There was either an activity or visual or hands on way of approaching the material— not only a traditional lecture.

3. The presenters posed questions/perspectives/that enabled active participation, fostered a dialogic classroom community and responded well to questions from the class.

4. researched the topic well (The expectation is that the group will have read the entire text and other related texts or materials to provide background for the class) worked together as a team to bring out various aspects, points of view, experiences with the book and connect previous discussions, sessions, readings—rich inter-textuality and insights.

The presentation included a handout of related resources, additional readings, websites.
