COURSE DESCRIPTION
Prerequisites: Admission to CNDV program, EDCD 603: Counseling Theories and Practice.

This course provides a broad understanding of issues of grief within a counseling context. Topics include understanding the dynamics of grief, theory of the stages and process of grief, and the application of theory within a counseling relationship.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
The objectives for this course are:

- Gain an understanding of classic and current theories of grief and their application in counseling.
- Understand psychological dynamics of grief and the impact on the counseling relationship.
- Learn to assess for grief, and practice application of grief theory in counseling.

Relationship to Course and Program Goals and Professional Organizations

EDCD 797 is a special topics course and meets the requirement that all masters students take 2-3 credits of special topics course work. This 1-credit course will contribute to counseling students' knowledge of a particular counseling issue.

EDCD 797 fulfills the requirements of the following professional organizations:

- Virginia Department of Education requirement for school counseling licensure that candidates understand the knowledge, skills and processes of individual counseling.
- Virginia Department of Health Professions requirement that Licensed Professional Counselor candidates complete graduate study in theories and techniques of counseling and psychotherapy.
- Council for the Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP) core requirement described in Section II.K.e: Helping relationships: An understanding of counseling and consultation processes.
- American Counseling Association Code of Ethics requirement that counselors establish counselor education and training programs that integrate academic study and supervised practice.

REQUIRED READINGS

Chapters Selected from:

Readings will be available on the Course Blackboard site.

COURSE STRUCTURE

The class will include lecture, group discussion, experiential activities and case studies. The class will have two sessions, Saturday, March 31st and Saturday, April 28th, 9:00am-4:30pm. It is expected that students will have read the assigned material prior to the class meeting in which the readings are discussed.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

- Active Participation is expected in all class activities. Students are expected to attend all classes and come to class prepared having completed all reading and written assignments. Active participation is based on your presence in the class—one or more unexcused absence may result in course failure. [30 points].

- Midterm Exam. The midterm exam will be completed at home and available immediately following the first class session (March 31st) and is due by April 14th, 6:00pm. The exam will cover knowledge and application of theory. [35 points].

- Final Research Paper. Paper should be 5-7 pages and should cover theory and research as applicable to a specific area of grief and loss. The final research paper is due by May 12th, 6:00pm. The paper must be completed in APA style (6th edition). [35 points].

Summary of Grading System & Course Requirements

Grading

EDCD 797 is a graded course. Included in the assignments is the requirement that the following must also be met to receive a passing grade:

- Assignments must be turned in by the date and time due. Assignments not turned in by the date and time due will receive a failing grade.

- Attendance at all classes. EDCD 797-003 is a one credit class, there are NO unexcused absences permitted. Any unexcused absence will result in failure of the course. Late arrivals to class count towards an unexcused absence.

Students will be evaluated on the course requirements as listed above. It is expected that all students will demonstrate skills through class participation, presentations, evaluations, and assigned projects and papers.

Plagiarism Statement
Plagiarism means using the exact words, opinions, or factual information from another person without giving that person credit. Writers give credit through accepted documentation styles, such as parenthetical citation, footnotes, or endnotes; a simple listing of books and articles is not sufficient. Plagiarism is the equivalent of intellectual robbery and cannot be tolerated in an academic setting. Student writers are often confused as to what should be cited. Some think that only direct quotations need to be credited. While direct quotations do need citations, so do paraphrases and summaries of opinions or factual information formerly unknown to the writers or which the writers did not discover themselves. Exceptions for this include factual information which can be obtained from a variety of sources, the writers' own insights or findings from their own field research, and what has been termed common knowledge. What constitutes common knowledge can sometimes be precarious; what is common knowledge for one audience may not be so for another. In such situations, it is helpful, to keep the reader in mind and to think of citations as being "reader friendly." In other words, writers provide a citation for any piece of information that they think their readers might want to investigate further. Not only is this attitude considerate of readers, it will almost certainly ensure that writers will never be guilty of plagiarism. (Statement of English Department at George Mason University)
