How can English teachers invite and work with a variety of perspectives when shaping literary interpretation?

What is an essay? What role does essay writing play in helping students interpret literature texts?

What other modes of writing can foster and shape literary interpretation?

How can English teachers differentiate reading and writing for students with various aptitudes for reading and in various stages of English language acquisition?

Relationship to Program Goals and Professional Organizations

EDCI 669 is designed to encompass a critical exploration and analysis of current developments in the teaching of secondary English with an emphasis on student-centered methods that encourage integrated study of the language arts. Areas of study include reading and writing development, the writing process, the processes involved in reading literary texts, reader-response theories and research, oral language and listening skill development, as well as formative and summative techniques for assessing pupil progress. EDCI 669 also focuses on the use of technology in the classroom and the needs of diverse learners as called for by the Standards of Learning for Virginia Public Schools and National English Education Standards and as outlined by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE) and the International Reading Association (IRA).

Course Requirements

Attendance and Participation. Attendance at each class session and field experience is critical. Your attendance, thoughtfulness, clarity, and active sharing of responsibility for our classroom community will affect your grade. You are expected to read and keep notes on class material, complete all assignments, and contribute as both a listener and speaker in class discussions. Absences and tardies, both in class and fieldwork will impact your grade. Two tardies are equal to one absence. Each student is allowed one absence, no explanation required. For each session you are absent beyond this one session, points will be deducted from your attendance and class participation points. Students are responsible for obtaining information given during class discussions despite attendance. Please turn off all cell phones, computers, and pagers when you enter class or your fieldwork setting.

Story of Injustice Persuasive Narrative

One of the primary ways we develop as citizens is to participate in activities in our classes where we consider issues of justice. We will combine separate activities that teacher and author Jessica Singer (in her book Stirring Up Justice) describes to create these narratives in class. The goal in this assignment is to get to know yourselves as writers and explore issues that matter in your classroom and will guide your practice. You are urged to use this assignment in your own class as well. DUE: Draft , 9/20 and Final, 9/27

Exploratory Essay and Lesson Plan

Given our focus on teaching and writing, we are going to discuss the question, “What is an essay?” You will bring an essay to class that you think could serve as an exemplar piece for your students. This essay may be found in any source – newspaper, magazine, an anthology, or online source. It is up to you to use your judgment to decide if the piece qualifies as an essay. Based on your chosen essay, you will design a lesson plan that introduces students to writing an exploratory essay. The lesson plan (again, use the format in the Secondary Program Handbook) must include objectives, standards, instructional plan, and assessment. The lesson plan must address at least two NCTE standards and the INTASC standards addressed in a rubric I will provide to you. Include all written materials that would be given to students as part of the lesson. Include all assessments and accompanying rubrics to be used for the lesson. The assessment of this lesson plan and its implementation must include self, peer, mentor teacher, student, and instructor evaluations and feedback. The lesson must include differentiation of instruction for students of varying levels. When presenting points for discussion, include your expected responses to teacher-student interaction and alternative discussion plans depending on student responses. Include a narrative that outlines your justification for the instructional decisions you make through the lesson. DUE: 10/11

This lesson plan may be used as part of your unit plan.

“Best Of...” Strategy Presentation

Each of several weeks across our semester two members of our class will be responsible for sharing a “best of...” teaching strategy with our class. This should be a writing instruction-focused strategy that we might use with middle/high school students. Find a teacher-friendly article related to the subject of your group’s presentation and provide electronic copies for the entire class. Please treat each workshop as if you are planning for a 60-minute lesson in a middle/high school setting. (again, use the format in the Secondary Program Handbook) Provide materials that you would use in your classroom and facilitate us in testing out the activities and tools you have developed. Also, be sure to describe how you might modify these strategies for serving reluctant learners, struggling students, and diverse students. Please note that you can draw this strategy from our readings, your fieldwork mentor’s practices, or other resources. DUE: (one group per week, see sign-up sheet)

Interview of English Language Arts Teacher

Students will conduct a minimum 10-question interview with an English teacher in a school setting. Ideally this will occur in your fieldwork setting for the semester. Based on your interview, write a summary report of the interview and be ready to share your findings with the class. The purpose of this interview is to begin to learn from a professional educator whom you trust and respect. In a maximum three-page document, the report must include the name of the person interviewed, their position in the school, the grade/grades with whom this individual works, the questions asked, and a summary of their transcribed responses. Possible questions to ask during the interview include the following:

- What are the primary literacy challenges your students are facing?
- Describe the English curricula utilized in your classroom/the school
- Describe an English lesson you have used to serve the needs of your students
- Describe other literary activities that you utilize in your classroom to serve students' needs
- What do you believe are the assets of your school or classroom English curricula/programs?
- What do you believe are the limitations of your school or classroom English curricula/program?
- How do you and your school colleagues support parents and families to promote students' engagement and achievement within school or out of school literary activities?
- What do you consider a successful English lesson?
- What approaches to classroom management do you prefer?
- How do you measure your effectiveness at reaching your objectives as an English teacher?

Teacher Scavenger Hunt

For this assignment, you will locate various items that new teachers need to have access to during the internship and beyond. The purpose of this assignment is to become familiar with terms and items that you will be expected to know upon entering the profession. For this scavenger hunt you will locate in your field experience school the following items:

- VGLA
Pacing Guide
- POS
- WIDA Scores
- Lexile Framework
- IEP/504 forms
- CLT/PLC philosophy

In addition, you will write a brief paper explaining how you went about discovering both what the items were and where they were located/used in your school. Discuss challenges, discoveries, and surprises.

For both assignments, be prepared to share your journey with the class.

DUE: Both written work and presentation 11/08

Unit Plan. As a culminating project for this course, each student will use the “backwards design” process to develop a plan for teaching a literature-based unit which actively involves students in meaningful learning; carefully individualizes to accommodate the diverse strengths and needs of students; effectively integrates reading, writing, oral language, and language study; and provides for authentic assessment. The unit can revolve around a particular literary work, a theme, a writer, a period or genre, as long as the unit builds on the strengths and meets the needs of a diverse student population. Long-range plans will include a narrative overview of the unit, its overall goals and objectives, the basic time frame, general procedures, a description of the intended learners, planned assessment techniques, the backwards planning chart, and a unit calendar. Specific daily lesson plans, including all support materials, should be included for any five block-length lessons or ten period-length lessons from the unit; each lesson plan should make clear connections between stated objectives and planned assessment. The unit’s organization and methodological approaches should reflect current research and practice in the teaching of English/language arts.

To evaluate how well these unit plans meet the NCTE standards for effective planning, the EDCI 479/669 instructors score the unit plans using an evaluation rubric based on the standards; a rubric follows the description of this unit plan. The unit plan assignment is aimed at helping English education candidates consider how their students’ varied uses of language and non-print media can be related to the study of literature and visual and written composition. As such, the English evaluation rubric focuses on NCTE Standards 2.4, 2.5, 3.1, 3.2, 3.4, 3.5, 3.6, 4.1, 4.2 and 4.8. The unit plan must also include a rationale in which the candidates use theory and research to argue for an approach to instruction that focuses on students’ varied uses of language (oral and written). Therefore, the English evaluation rubric also includes attention to NCTE Standard 3.7. (incomplete units will earn a failing grade).

DUE: You will turn in items in stages - full calendar forthcoming. The final product is due via Taskstream on MONDAY 11/26 – work will be presented on 11/29

The lesson plan from Methods 1 and the Exploratory essay lesson plan above may be included in this unit plan.

Field Experience Critical Incidents Reflections and Images/Pilot Teaching Project

This course has a required field experience component. You are required to have 15 contact hours in a classroom. This opportunity is an invaluable way to connect course content to what is going on in actual high school and middle school classrooms as well as promoting critical self-reflection about the practice of teaching and the culture of schools.

You cannot earn a passing grade for the course if you do not complete your field experience. When you participate in your field experience, be sure to take general notes and notes on anything that relates to what we are discussing in class. Handouts with further details are forthcoming. The fieldwork assignment, along with a signed copy of documentation of hours, should be turned in no later than December 6th.

Course Evaluation

The grading system for graduate courses at GMU is as follows:

A+= 97-100	B+ = 87-89	C = 70=79
A = 94-96	B= 84-86	F = 70 and below
A- = 90-93	B- = 80-83

All assignments must be turned in on time. Late and/or incomplete assignments will not be given full credit; in the case of extenuating circumstances, approval must be granted in advance by the instructor.

Unit Plan Format

- Overview of Unit (as posted on Blackboard)
- Unit Plan Pre-Organizer/Backwards Planning Chart (handwritten notes are fine)
- Unit Calendar (word-processed, with enough detail that a substitute teacher could understand purposes, daily plans, and connections; five daily plans highlighted in some way)
- Five block-length or ten period-length lesson plans from the unit, which must include all of the following elements:
 - connection of daily lesson plan with larger unit
 - instructional objective(s) in learner terms
 - inclusion of a specific Virginia Standards of Learning benchmark
 - planned assessment(s)—including both informal (formative) and formal (summative)
 - lesson procedures, detailed enough for a substitute teacher to teach from
 - follow-up plans (homework or summary of next day’s plan)
 - list of lesson materials, resources, and equipment
 - all support materials attached

Suggestions for Planning the Unit

Follow these suggested steps:

1. Select a focus: Begin by selecting a focus for your unit plan, which must revolve in some way around the teaching of literature. Consider your own knowledge of and passions for literature; in addition, take a look at the literature curriculum for local-area public schools. Some possible ways to organize a literature-based unit:
 - Theme: A thematic unit often includes multiple works of literature with similar themes (i.e. a novel supplemented with a couple of short stories and some poetry). Examples of theme-organized units: “Surviving Against the Odds,” “The Search for Self,” or “The Power of Place” (which could be used with The House on Mango Street, combined with short stories, personal narratives, and poetry in which place, home, and/or setting are key elements).
 - Work of Literature: Some units revolve around the study of a specific work of literature; examples might include Hamlet, Of Mice and Men, The House on Mango Street.
 - Genre: Some units introduce students to a particular genre and its characteristics. Examples might include a short story unit, a unit on science fiction, or a unit on vignettes/personal narratives.
 - Author: Major authors sometimes become the focus of a unit of study; author-based units include the study of the author’s background and multiple examples of the author’s work. Examples might include Toni Morrison, Ernest Hemingway, Sandra Cisneros.
 - Historical and/or Literary Period: Sometimes the literature curriculum is organized around historical developments in literature. Examples might include the Harlem Renaissance, Romantic Poetry, Contemporary Latino American Writers.
 - Element of Literature: State and national standards require the teaching of various elements of literature, and units of study can also be organized around these. In these units, the teacher carefully selects literature that provides strong examples of the literary element under study. Examples might include Conflict and Climax in Short Stories, Symbolism, or Imagery in Personal Narrative.
2. Select a target student population: Browse the Virginia SOLs, and select what you believe to be an appropriate grade level for your unit. An example might include focusing your unit on the study of American literature (so you select a grade level which specifically has SOLs for American literature) or focusing your unit on metaphor (so you find metaphor on the list of SOL’s for a specific grade level). Note: In “real life” teaching, you would, of course, begin with this step, as you would want to base your instructional planning on your knowledge of actual students and the required curriculum/SOLs for those students.
3. Develop a set of essential questions and enduring understandings, knowledge, and skills for the unit: What are the major learnings to be gained from your unit? What will you expect your students to know and be able to do at the end of the unit? How will your unit create a learning environment in which all students can engage in the learning? In what ways will you use the pieces of your unit to help students become familiar with their own and others’ cultures, and understand the role of arts and the humanities on their lives? Examples that could be used in connection with units revolving in some way around The House on Mango Street: What is the role of “place” in our lives? Why is it that humans often experience the conflicting desires to escape their pasts and yet also be drawn back home? Who is Esperanza? What are her key experiences, feelings, and goals as she moves through her early adolescence? How does her development parallel the development of adolescents in general? What is a vignette? Who is Sandra Cisneros, and how would you describe her writing style? What is imagery? How does Cisneros use imagery in The House on Mango Street, and how can I incorporate imagery in my own writing?

4. Consider possible ways to assess student learning: Once you have identified essential questions/enduring understandings and key knowledge and skills for your unit, try to generate possible ways of assessing what your students have learned. Based on the suggested understandings listed above in #3, examples might include a literary analysis essay on the writing style of Sandra Cisneros, a final project that asks small groups of students to discuss the role of place in literature and life, or the writing of a personal narrative containing strong imagery.
5. Work with the backwards planning unit pre-organizer chart: Now, begin to get more detailed in your thinking. Try filling out the unit plan pre-organizer chart with possible essential questions, enduring knowledge and skills, instructional goals in multiple strands of the language arts, SOL's, benchmarks, and assessments that might become the basis of the unit. List more than you will need/use in the end. Remember that once you identify planned assessments, you will need to do some task analysis to consider what knowledge and skills students will need in order to successfully complete your assessments. Note: The term "benchmarks" refers to the bulleted lists that appear under the larger, more holistic SOL statements.
6. Generate a long list of possible teaching ideas that will support your students' learning of your unit's key goals and their successful achievement on your unit's major assessments: Here's where you can begin to really think about the details of instruction. Get online for some lesson plan ideas. Observe your fieldwork teachers carefully for model lessons. Look back on course notes for activities we've talked about or actually done during class sessions. Remember your own best experiences from school. Be creative! List all sorts of possible ideas for instructional activities, ways to adapt instruction to meet the needs of your targeted age group and ability level, methods for incorporating media and technology, etc. You'll probably end up with many more ideas and possibilities on this pre-planning chart than you will ever be able to use in your unit.
7. Create a unit calendar: Once you've done lots of idea generation, it's time to try and see how it can all fit together in an organized way. Here's a hint for an approach to preliminary calendar planning: (a) create a generic Monday through Friday monthly calendar on a large piece of paper, (b) write possible ideas for daily activities and assessments on small "stickies," (c) move your stickies around on your calendar until you begin to get a sense of a workable plan. You will almost certainly end up abandoning some of the ideas on your stickies; remember that it is far more important to teach for understanding than to teach for coverage.
8. Write the required Overview of the Unit (format available on Blackboard): Once your calendar is done, follow the steps below to write a brief overview of the unit. Note: No section below needs to be longer than five sentences, and you can just list elements and examples where appropriate.

- Unit Focus: Identify the broad focus of your unit (i.e. Author Study of Sandra Cisneros, Genre Study: Drama); see #1 above.
 - Intended Grade Level: Identify the grade level or course for which you have geared your unit.
 - Narrative Overview of Unit: Provide a 3-5 sentence overview describing your unit plan; assume that your reader is another teacher who needs a quick summary of the key components of your unit.
 - Essential Questions/Enduring Understandings: List your unit's essential question(s) and enduring knowledge and skills; what are the most important learnings your students will gain from this unit? Provide a picture of why this unit is important; see #3 above.
 - Major Goals and Objectives: List the major instructional goals/objectives; include the key Standards of Learning addressed in your unit.
 - Major Unit Assessments: List the major assessments planned for your unit; these major assessments should provide a way of assessing whether your students met the unit's major instructional objectives.
 - Task Analysis for Major Assessments: Think carefully about the knowledge and skills your students will need in order to perform satisfactorily on your major assessments. List the knowledge/skills required here; and then keep in mind that the identified knowledge/skills must be taught as part of the unit or have been previously taught and learned.
 - List of Planned Instructional Procedures: List the major instructional procedures and activities planned for your unit. Check to make sure that your list represents multiple strands of the language arts and various teaching methodologies.
 - Description of Intended (or Imagined) Students: Here, describe your target students for the unit. Again, grade level and/or course? Characteristics of your learners? Background knowledge of your learners?
 - Possible Unit Adaptations to Meet Strengths and Needs of Learners: In this section, describe some ways in which you could adapt your unit to meet the needs of your students. Consider factors related to motivation, culture, language, special needs, literacy issues, etc.
9. Write lesson plans: By now, you've got a good overall sense of your unit represented in both your Unit Overview and your Unit Calendar. Now it's time to begin working on more detailed plans for daily lessons (using the format we've been using for written microteaching lesson plans). Peruse your unit calendar, and select days for which you will now develop detailed plans. You must submit the equivalent of two weeks of fully-developed daily plans. If you are planning for a teaching schedule that is on the traditional format of 45-60 minutes of daily class periods, then please write up ten lesson plans. If you are planning for a teaching schedule based on 90-120 minute block periods that meet every other day, then please write up five lesson plans. (If you are planning for a combination traditional/block schedule, then you will need to determine an appropriate number of plans based on the above guidelines.) Please put an asterisk on each day of your unit calendar for which you develop a specific daily lesson plan. Of the required lesson plans, at least one fully articulated plan must include activities designed to help students with language-related knowledge and/or skills integrated in such a way as to demonstrate your understanding of best practice methodology.

Unit Plan Evaluation Rubric
Aligned with NCTE Standards for Initial Preparation of Teachers of Secondary English Language Arts (Grades 7–12)

Name of candidate _____

Date _____

This English rubric is supplemental to the Secondary Education Program’s Pre-Service General Evaluation Rubric. These guidelines and rubric describe the planning performance standards in the College of Education and Human Development at George Mason University that secondary school pre-service teachers need to meet before proceeding to their internship/student teaching. During “Advanced Methods in Teaching English in the Secondary School” (EDCI 479/669), each pre-service teacher will design a two to four week unit plan for teaching. Two rubrics will be used to assess planning: a general rubric and subject specific rubric (for English, this is the NCTE rubric). If the average score for any standard is less than a one (1), materials must be re-submitted per instructions from your instructor.

Rating		Description
NA	Not Assessable/ Initial Assessment	Given the nature of the assessment, the candidate cannot reasonably demonstrate complete understanding or mastery of the given standard. The standard is included in this rubric in order to introduce candidates to its relevance and to provide them with an initial, formative self, peer, and/or instructor assessment of their proficiency with this standard. An “NA/IA” score does not count toward the calculation of the mean score for this assessment. Note: Standards to be assessed with NA/IA are indicated using italics.
0	Unacceptable	The candidate exhibits little, or irrelevant, evidence of meeting the standard for planning, teaching, and student learning. Specifically, a score of zero (0) is given when there is no evidence of the pre-service teacher’s attempt to meet a particular NCTE standard, OR the attempt is Unacceptable, as defined by NCTE.
1	Marginal	The candidate exhibits insufficient evidence of performance in relation to essential knowledge, skills, dispositions required by the standard. Provides fundamental evidence of attainment but does not yet meet minimum expectations for planning, teaching, and student learning. Specifically, a score of one (1) is given when the pre-service teacher meets the Acceptable level of criteria for a NCTE standard.
2	Meets Expectations	The candidate exhibits performance that meets the standard in essential knowledge, skills and dispositions. Provides evidence of sound work, usually with multiple examples of achievement which substantially meet basic expectations for planning, teaching, and student learning. Specifically, a score of two (2) is given when the pre-service teacher meets the Target level of criteria for a NCTE standard.
3	Exceeds	The candidate exhibits mastery of the knowledge, skills and

	Expectations	dispositions required by the standard.
