Instructor: Michelle Lague, MEd, PhD Candidate

Office/Hours: Face-to-face/Zoom, MW, 4:00-4:30 (through June 16th)

Phone: 571.212.1265 (M)/Email: mlague@gmu.edu

Class Meetings

Mon (face-to-face)/Weds (virtual synchronous)/Fri (virtual asynchronous), May 17th-Jun 18th, 4:30-7:20 pm

Our class will meet for four face-to-face sessions on Mondays, five virtual synchronous sessions on Wednesdays (here: <https://gmu.zoom.us/j/99759398209>), and for four virtual asynchronous sessions each of the first four weeks of the course (plus attend the Online Summit on the Research and Teaching of Young Adult Literature during week #4). Students may request a virtual conference at any time; voice and chat conferences will be conducted via Zoom or phone. I am happy to clarify and lend assistance on assignments, but please contact me within a reasonable timeframe. I look forward to collaborating with each of you as you work toward your goals.

Prerequisites/Corequisites

None

Course Description

SEED 502, "Young Adult Literature in Multicultural Settings" examines the historical development of literary works written for and about young adults; introduces critical issues surrounding the use and teaching of young adult literature in today's culturally diverse public schools; and requires the reading/review of young adult literature in a variety of genres.

Course Delivery

The course will be delivered through a variety of face-to-face and online instructional approaches. During class meetings there will be large group, small group, and individual activities. Zoom, GMU's Blackboard course framework, and Google Slides (plus Google Classroom, for sharing of resources) will be used throughout the course. Your GMU email address is required for communication with the course instructor and must be active by the first week of class. You must also have a Gmail account to allow you to access the course Google Classroom site, where all resources will be shared. Please inform me of any accessibility problems the first day of class. In general, we will engage in four activities during our time together:

1. Whole group: Mini-lectures, activities, and discussions related to English instruction methods led by the instructor, course participants, and special guests, and supported by course texts/readings
2. Small group: Meetings in which students concentrate on selected activities and readings, providing feedback and support for each other's lesson plans and projects
3. Pairs: Meetings in which students concentrate further on selected readings and lesson planning
4. Advising/Check-In Conferences: We will meet for optional advising/check-in meetings before each class

Please note that because you have much to learn from each other, and because teaching is often a collaborative effort, you will frequently work in groups. This will give you a chance to share ideas, be exposed to a range of perspectives and experiences, and support each other as you continue to develop your teaching skills. As noted above, we will meet in class face-to-face on Mondays, in virtual synchronous sessions on Wednesdays, and in your "Reading Groups" in virtual asynchronous sessions at least once at later points each week (our "Friday"). In addition, you will meet with an assigned partner at least once each week (on your own schedule), and you will be required to attend the Online Summit on the Research and Teaching of Young Adult Literature (Thursday, June 10th-Saturday, June 12th). While we meet virtually as a class using Zoom, you are encouraged to meet in your small groups and with your partner via electronic means that you believe would be effective for your future/current students' virtual discussions of literature.

For Online Courses Only: Under no circumstances may candidates/students participate in online class sessions (either by phone or Internet) while operating motor vehicles. Further, as expected in a face-to-face class meeting, such online participation requires undivided attention to course content and communication.

Course Outcomes and Objectives

This course is designed to support pre-service and in-service secondary school teachers as they:

- Gain knowledge of the emergence of the genre known as young adult literature (research-based practice; innovation)
- Read and review a wide range of young adult literature, including literature that is popular with adolescents, that is well regarded among ELA educators and media specialists, and that represents a wide range of cultural experiences (research-based practice; innovation; social justice)
- Become familiar with some of the most well-known authors of young adult literature (research-based practice; innovation)
- Develop awareness of issues associated with the use of young adult literature in today's public schools (e.g., censorship) (collaboration; research-based practice; innovation; ethical leadership; social justice)
- Consider instructional purposes and strategies for incorporating young adult literature into the middle and high school curricula (research-based practice; innovation; collaboration)
- Explore research, theory, and practice associated with young adult literature (research-based practice; innovation; collaboration)

Course Readings

Cisneros, Sandra. (1984). The House on Mango Street.

Reynolds, Jason. (2015). Long Way Down.

Sanchez, Erika L. (2017). I Am Not Your Perfect Mexican Daughter.

Thomas, Angie. (2017). The Hate U Give.

Takei, George. (2019) They Called Us Enemy.

Note: Additional required readings will be assigned during the course of our class and provided electronically.

In addition, each student will read one example of four of the types of young adult literature listed below; we will identify which specific books you will read based on a class survey and these will be read using reading group, literature circle, and other small group structures. Reading groups will be formed around each type for the purposes of discussion and other work. Please note these books will NOT be shelved with the course texts, but you can find them in any bookstore or on Amazon or other bookselling Websites. Finally, the list below is neither exhaustive nor complete.

Materials and Recommendations

Students will need access to art, craft, and drawing materials, and a digital camera (or a smartphone). You are also recommended to obtain a student membership in either the National Council of Teachers of English and/or the International Literacy Association and to subscribe to one of the following journals:

English Journal

Voices from the Middle

Journal of Adolescent and Adult Literacy

English Education

Course Expectations and Projects

Across this course we will complete a number of projects. All written work must be typed, double-spaced, in 11-12 pt font, with 1-inch margins, and must be submitted electronically. Save all electronic files with your last name, the assignment title, the version name, and the date you are submitting (ex: Smith Professional Development Proposal Draft 5-25-21.docx). All projects are due by midnight (Eastern time) on the day of the given course session; projects late due to unsatisfactory tardies or absences will be accepted at my discretion. In recognition that we are all human, you will be allowed one late assignment without penalty; after this initial allowance, no ensuing late work will be accepted. You will also be assessed on your writing proficiency (grammar, spelling, coherence, etc.) in addition to the requirements of each assignment. Incompletes will only be an option for students who have consistently attended and participated in class and have completed and turned in all required work except the final projects. Please note that we will use Google Classroom to share resources and for you to submit drafts and revisions of course projects; final assignments need to be uploaded to Blackboard and all grades will be posted there.

Attendance and Participation in Class and Small Group Sessions (55 points)

By virtue of agreeing to work together in this course we instantly formed a new community. This community will be rooted in mutual respect and shared responsibility; these foundations translate into consistent and punctual attendance and active participation in all class activities. Attendance in this class is critical. You must be in class-participating and/or participating via our Blackboard site or other "virtual engagement" methods-each week. Our class times will provide opportunities for (1) participation in activities, (2) presentations and demonstrations of effective teaching strategies, and (3) discussions and reflection on course readings, class activities, and assignments. Students are expected to be on time and well prepared to participate in class as active, thoughtful discussants.

Note: You are expected to be in class--virtually--during the entirety of our Wednesday synchronous sessions and for the entirety of any asynchronous sessions you schedule with your reading groups and/or Way Forward project partners. You are expected to have your camera on at all times, to mute your microphones except when to speak, and to use the chat options for course purposes (e.g., an alternative means of participation, to ask questions, etc) or when directed as part of course activities.

My goal is to develop a comfortable classroom community where risk-taking is encouraged; we can only grow through such open-heartedness. You are expected to complete assignments for each class day, and contribute as both a listener and speaker in large, small group, paired, and individual activities and discussions. One of the most important commitments I make is to engage with students individually so that I can best understand your needs and goals and best support your growth.

In line with the above expectations, absences and tardies will impact your grade. Two tardies or early departures are equal to one absence, and missing 30% or more of class sessions will result in automatic failure of the course. If you must be late to or miss a class, you must contact the instructor ahead of time. Please note that this policy makes no distinction between "excused" or "unexcused" absences or tardies. In an effort to scaffold your work and learning in our course, we have identified assessment details (including points) for each element of this assignment.

We will explore young adult literature in three ways this term: a) through reading five common texts; b) through participating in focused choice readings with small reading groups; c) through paired reading of "Way Forward" books related to a theme and co-planning of a lesson plan that incorporates both "Way Forward" book; d) through 1:1 and small group "Home Team" conferences:

- Whole Class Book Study and "Discussion Circle" (General class attendance and participation will be scored at 5 points per week or a total of 25 points): Each Monday the instructor will lead students in discussion and activities around the five common texts through a range of methods, including literature circle structures. Our goal is that during each round of these book studies, each person will play a different role in the small groups we form in class. Details of set "Discussion Circle" groups will be shared in class and the instructor will often illustrate concepts and strategies found in our class readings via these groups.
- Reading Groups (Reading Group attendance and participation will be scored at 5 points per group or a total of 20 points): Students will engage with peers in focused study around young adult books from the categories listed above. There are three main elements of these groups' interactions:
 - Prior to beginning class on May 17th, students will (a) review the lists and (b) select your top three book choices from each category and submit to your instructor. Based on these selections I will assign you to small groups--four across the five weeks of our class. Each week you will meet with a new group to read the selected title from a particular category (i.e., your group might choose realistic fiction and all members might read Hatchet by Gary Paulsen).
 - Each week your group will be given time during class to meet and design a plan for (a) reading and discussing the text via a technology-based or "virtual engagement" means, (b) presenting the text to your peers via a product that showcases the book you read and the possibilities for its use in the classroom.
 - Each week your group will also present your discussion method and your product (in a format described in the separate Reading Group project handout), modeling and highlighting the alternatives to literature circle discussions through which you engaged. This product must include a reference to a research-based article related to your group's discussion method or use of your book with students.
 - Note: During week #4 of our class your Reading Group will identify and attend at least three sessions of the "Online Summit on the Research and Teaching of Young Adult Literature"; at least one of these sessions must be connected to or inform your reading and teaching of your group's book for this week.
- Way Forward Project Planning (5 points): Students will choose a topic that they believe absolutely must be taught, that they have a personal, moral, professional obligation to teach. Based on these topics we will form pairs of students, who will then collaborate to identify two books that address this theme and that they think every young person should read. They will then develop one complete lesson plan that would be a part of a unit they could envision teaching in their classrooms in the future. Note: See additional details below.
- "Home Team" Conferences (5 points): You will meet with your home team groups each Monday.

Perspectives on Reading (POR) Project (10 points)

This assignment will ask you to think about, explore, and document your own and one student's relationships to and experiences with reading. You will have to identify and connect with a young person of approximately the same age and demographics as the students you are teaching or you hope to teach. Your primary selection criteria is the relevance of your "informant": is this individual someone who you think could give you insight into why we read and how you might better teach young people to engage with reading?

You will answer seven questions--each with reflections/writings and texts:

- 1) How did you and this young adult learn to read and who and what influenced your relationship to reading, in and out of school?
- 2) What do you and this young adult believe are the purposes of reading, in and out school?
- 3) What supports your own and this young adult's ability to read and your own and this young person's interest in reading, in and out of school?
- 4) What impedes your own and this young person's ability to read and your own and this young adult's interest in reading, in and out of school?
- 5) What are the similarities and differences between this young person's experiences with reading and your own experiences?
- 6) What are some conclusions about this young person's experiences with reading that have given you insight into your own development as a reader and your approach to teaching reading?
- 7) How do these similarities, differences, and conclusions compare with specific research-based insights from materials we've read in our class?

We will ask you to reflect on these questions and connect them to topics discussed in class on an ongoing basis this semester. The final project must take an illustrated form that you consider relevant to your teaching; please be sure to include written text addressing the project questions to support the visual form. Take risks, be creative, and embrace the freedom that this project provides.

Due dates: Your draft responses to POR questions will be completed in class beginning Weds, May 19th; we will check in about your progress on this project each class session, with the final project due Weds, June 16th.

The Way Forward Book Talk Project and Lesson Plan (35 points)

We believe that young people are uniquely qualified to consider the challenges we face in the world and identify solutions, and literature and art have always offered opportunities for reflection on such issues and the guidance to overcome them. And some of the books that have given us the greatest insight into these challenges and solutions are those that have been challenged, banned, or censored. As teachers, it is our responsibility to give young people these tools of reflection and action, and we will ask you to consider literature--including those challenged, banned, and censored texts--that you believe addresses this need in The Way Forward Book Talk Project and Lesson Plan.

In an effort to scaffold your work and learning in our course, we have identified deadlines and assessment details (including points) for each element of this project. For our second day in class, please respond to the following queries (due on Weds, May 19th: 5 points):

- What is the history, the present and the future of our world?
- What books give us the best and most accurate view of our past? Including banned, challenged, and censored texts?
- What books give us the most accurate and hopeful view of our present and future? Including banned, challenged, and censored texts?
- Who do young people want to be?
- Who do you want to be--as a person and as a teacher?
- What books offer guiding principles for how young people and you will live your lives and learn and teach? Including banned, challenged, and censored texts?
- What is the type of community you hope to create in your classroom--and what book best illustrates this dynamic?
- Finally, what should be the evidence of your students' learning and their and your consideration of these questions and identification of these answers?

Based on your responses to these questions, your instructor(s) will form pairs of students to work together. Informed by your responses to these questions you and your partner will identify a “big idea”: one of the richest and most effective ways to teach--anything, but especially literature--is by identifying a concept (a big idea, a theme) that matters to students and the world and that raises a question that human beings and our societies have been trying to answer for a long time.

Based on this concept, you and your partner will choose two books (book choices due on Weds, May 26th: 5 points):

- 1) A contemporary Young Adult book: This book must be one that answers at least one--ideally all--of the questions above. This book cannot be one that we have considered as a class or in our small groups or pairs, and it must be one that you would be willing to share with your future/current students. It cannot be a book that is primarily a religious text (e.g., the Bible, the Koran, the Torah, etc.).
- 2) A canonical book: This book must also be one that answers at least one--ideally all--of the questions above. This book cannot be one that we have considered as a class or in our small groups or pairs, and it must be one that you would be willing to share with your future/current students. This book should be canonical or "classic" in nature, perhaps something commonly taught in middle or high schools. It cannot be a book that is primarily a religious text (e.g., the Bible, the Koran, the Torah, etc.)

Note: At least one of these texts must be one that has been challenged, banned, or censored--and you must describe the contexts and rationale where this challenging, banning, or censoring occurred.

With these two books, you will complete two elements of this assignment, submitting the concept, books, question, and draft lesson plans on Google Classroom under Major Assignments.:

A Book Talk (proposal due on Weds, June 2nd and final due on Mon, June 14th: 10 points)

You must create an authentic product--one that matters beyond you, outside of your classroom--to represent how these books address the concept you've identified, answer at least one of the questions above, and how they "talk" to each other about this concept and this answer. The product of this assignment is intended to be creative in nature, and can take any form. We will discuss possibilities and examples in class. We will check-in regularly as we choose books and craft our projects, and we will hope to share these on our last Monday class session. Take risks, be creative, and embrace the freedom that this project provides.

Lesson Planning (draft due on Weds., June 9th; final due on Weds, June 16th: 15 points)

Finally, each pair of students will use the “backwards design” process to develop one lesson plan--a basis for a unit that actively involves young adults in considering your chosen concept, answers at least one of those questions, and requires reading these two examples of literature and engaging in meaningful learning. These lesson plans must carefully individualize learning to accommodate the diverse strengths and needs of students and provide youths with opportunities to engage in authentic assessment activities. While you will plan just one lesson, your project must include a narrative overview of a unit in which this lesson might be included, the unit's overall goals and objectives (including one intentionally chosen NCTE standard(s) and one Virginia Standards of Learning--a maximum of two standards), the basic timeframe over which the complete unit might be taught, general pedagogical procedures, a description of the intended learners, planned assessment techniques, and a unit calendar. The lesson plan should make clear connections between stated objectives and planned assessments.

Due dates: Responses to questions due on Weds, May 19th; concept due on Mon, May 24th; books due on Weds, May 26th; book talk proposal due on Weds, June 2nd; draft lesson plan due on Wed., June 9th; book talk sharing on Mon, June 14th; final plan due on Weds, June 16th.

Grading Scale

A = 95-100%

A- = 90-94%

B+ = 89-87%

B = 86-83%

B- = 82-80%

C = 79-70%

F = Below 70

Grading Criteria and Mastery Grading

All assignments will be evaluated holistically using a mastery grading system, the general rubric described below, and a specific rubric provided with each assignment. A student must demonstrate "mastery" of each requirement of an assignment; doing so will result in a "B" level score. Only if a student additionally exceeds the expectations for that requirement—through quality, quantity, or the creativity of her/his work—will she/he be assessed with an "A" level score. With a mastery grading system, students must choose to "go above and beyond" in order to earn "A" level scores.

- "A" level score = Student work is well-organized, exceptionally thorough and thoughtful, candid, and completed in a professional and timely manner. Student followed all format and component guidelines, as well as including additional relevant components. Student supports assertions with multiple concrete examples and/or explanations. Significance and/or implications of observations are fully specified and extended to other contexts. Student work is exceptionally creative, includes additional artifacts, and/or intentionally supports peers' efforts.
- "B" level score = Student work is well organized, thorough, thoughtful, candid, and completed in a professional and timely manner. Student followed all format and component guidelines. Student supports assertions with concrete examples and/or explanations. Significance and/or implications of observations are fully specified.
- "C" level score = Student provides cursory responses to assignment requirements. Student followed all format and component guidelines. Development of ideas is somewhat vague, incomplete, or rudimentary. Compelling support for assertions is typically not provided.
- "F" level score = Student work is so brief that any reasonably accurate assessment is impossible.

GMU Policies and Resources for Students

Policies

- Students must adhere to the guidelines of the Mason Honor Code (see <http://oai.gmu.edu/the-mason-honor-code/>).
- Students must follow the university policy for Responsible Use of Computing (see <http://universitypolicy.gmu.edu/policies/responsible-use-of-computing/>).
- Students are responsible for the content of university communications sent to their Mason email account and are required to activate their account and check it regularly. All communication from the university, college, school, and program will be sent to students solely through their Mason email account.
- Students with disabilities who seek accommodations in a course must be registered with George Mason University Disability Services. Approved accommodations will begin at the time the written letter from Disability Services is received by the instructor (see <http://ods.gmu.edu/>).
- Students must silence all sound emitting devices unless otherwise authorized by the instructor.

Campus Resources

- Support for submission of assignments to Tk20 should be directed to tk20help@gmu.edu or <https://cehd.gmu.edu/aero/tk20>. Questions or concerns regarding use of Blackboard should be directed to <https://its.gmu.edu/knowledge-base/blackboard-instructional-technology-support-for-students/>.
