University Catalog Course Description

Prepares participants with a working knowledge of discourse analysis and its application to ethnographic and qualitative research in education. Focuses on critical discourse analysis as a resource to improve classroom interaction and transform educational practice and as an analytic tool for a social analysis of education in a wide variety of local, national and international education contexts and settings.

Course Overview

Draws on theoretical and analytic resources of systemic functional linguistics, genre/text studies, interactional sociolinguistics and critical social theory to understand how linguistic features of texts constitute and are constituted by social, cultural and local relations, processes and contexts in which they are embedded. Using a seminar format, participants will 1) discuss readings on Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA) methodology, key theoretical constructs, and published CDA analysis in qualitative and mixed method studies; 2) engage in collaborative analysis of various types of interactional texts; and 3) interpret data and develop arguments based on critical discourse analyses. Through these activities we aim to use CDA to construct systematic, insightful and powerful interpretations of education.

Course Delivery Method

This course will be delivered online using a synchronous and asynchronous format via Zoom and Blackboard Learning Management system (LMS) housed in the MyMason portal and Zoom. You will log in to the Blackboard (Bb) course site using your Mason email name (everything before @masonlive.gmu.edu) and email password.

Under no circumstances, may candidates/students participate in online class sessions (either by phone or Internet) while operating motor vehicles. Further, as expected in a face-to-face class meeting, such online participation requires undivided attention to course content and communication.

Technical Requirements

To participate in this course, students will need to satisfy the following technical requirements:

- High-speed Internet access with standard up-to-date browsers. To get a list of Blackboard's supported browsers see: https://help.blackboard.com/Learn/Student/Getting_Started/Browser_Support#supported-browsers
- To get a list of supported operation systems on different devices see: https://help.blackboard.com/Learn/Student/Getting_Started/Browser_Support#tested-devices-and-operating-systems
- Students must maintain consistent and reliable access to their GMU email and Blackboard, as these are the official methods of communication for this course.
- Students may be asked to create logins and passwords on supplemental websites and/or to download trial software to their computer or tablet as part of course requirements.
- The following software plug-ins for PCs and Macs, respectively, are available for free download: [Add or delete options, as desire.]
 - Adobe Acrobat Reader: <https://get.adobe.com/reader/>
 - Windows Media Player: <https://support.microsoft.com/en-us/help/14209/get-windows-media-player>
 - Apple Quick Time Player: www.apple.com/quicktime/download/

Expectations

Course Week: Our course week will begin on Monday and end on Sunday. Synchronous meetings will take place as indicated on the Schedule of Classes.

Log-in Frequency:

Students must actively check the course Blackboard site and their GMU email for communications from the instructor, class discussions, and/or access to course materials at least 3 times per week. In addition, students must log-in for all scheduled online synchronous meetings.

Participation:

Students are expected to actively engage in all course activities throughout the semester, which includes viewing all course materials, completing course activities and assignments, and participating in course discussions and group interactions.

Technical Competence:

Students are expected to demonstrate competence in the use of all course technology. Students who are struggling with technical components of the course are expected to seek assistance from the instructor and/or College or University technical services.

Technical Issues:

Students should anticipate some technical difficulties during the semester and should, therefore, budget their time accordingly. Late work will not be accepted based on individual technical issues.

Workload:

Please be aware that this course is not self-paced. Students are expected to meet specific deadlines and due dates listed in the Class Schedule section of this syllabus. It is the student's responsibility to keep track of the weekly course schedule of topics, readings, activities and assignments due.

Instructor Support:

Students may schedule a one-on-one meeting to discuss course requirements, content or other course-related issues. Those unable to come to a Mason campus can meet with the instructor via telephone or web conference. Students should email the instructor to schedule a one-on-one session, including their preferred meeting method and suggested dates/times.

Netiquette:

The course environment is a collaborative space. Experience shows that even an innocent remark typed in the online environment can be misconstrued. Students must always re-read their responses carefully before posting them, so as others do not consider them as personal offenses. Be positive in your approach with others and diplomatic in selecting your words. Remember that you are not competing with classmates, but sharing information and learning from others. All faculty are similarly expected to be respectful in all communications.

Accommodations:

Online learners who require effective accommodations to insure accessibility must be registered with George Mason University Disability Services.

Learner Outcomes or Objectives

This course is designed to enable students to do the following:

- Become familiar with major contributions from Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA) in educational research.
- Critique major developments and concerns in the field.
- Find examples of discourse analysis in their area of specialization.
- Gain experience in using (CDA) tools with examples from popular culture and the media.
- Transcribe and code different types of interactional text.
- Identify patterns in discourse/data.
- Use discourse analysis to reflect on and improve classroom interaction.
- Increase awareness of the “hidden codes” promoted by interests within and external to education.

- Promote a critical literacy involving writing, reading, presentation, organization, and research skills.
- Interpret data and share arguments using critical discourse analysis.

Professional Standards (College of Education and Human Development)

Using completion of this course, students will have met the following professional standards: In 2006, the College of Education and Human Development (CEHD) adopted five core values on which to focus: collaboration, ethical leadership, innovation, research-based practice and social justice. This course supports each of these values by providing multiple learning experiences that necessitate collaboration. Students are afforded opportunities to reflect on their leadership roles in their work as researchers and educational practitioners in their work and learning contexts; to utilize discourse analysis to design and engage in innovative research and improve classroom practice, particularly with respect to social justice.

COURSE ASSIGNMENTS

PARTICIPATION (20 points)

1-1. Participation and Attendance (5 points)

For this course, active student participation is crucial. Students will share their thoughts and questions regularly. Together, we will debate theories and concepts from our readings. Students are expected to meet the following objectives:

- Attend all zoom sessions and be attentive.
- Attend and complete all asynchronous Blackboard sessions in a timely manner.
- Provide thoughtful and critical analysis of readings in all discussions.
- Provide peer comments to the main DB and article critique DB.

1-2. Online Discussion Board Posts (10 x 1.5 = 15 points)

Students will actively engage online, as they post reactions to readings and write preparatory assignments for their final. Students will not only reflect on readings individually, but also respond to others' posts. Students will receive up to 1.5 points based on the expectations listed below.

	Expectations	Points
Original Post	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Address and answer all questions in DB - Apply and cite appropriately from course readings - Critically integrate ideas from readings and/or your own prior knowledge and experiences, with new information from the week's assignment - Write formally, using proper grammar, toward developing your own "academic voice" - Use APA style when referring to reading and other sources - Post your response by due day/time. 	1
Peer Response	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Respond to at least two of your peers - In your response, provide your critical and constructive feedback, questions, and suggestions - Post your peer responses by due day/time 	0.5

2. Discussion Facilitation on Readings (10 points)

Each student will present on class readings and facilitate class discussions and an activity. Students will receive up to 10 points based on the expectations listed below.

	Expectations	Points
	Present a brief analysis of the week's readings (up to 10 mins, keep it simple!) to place their work in historical context (disciplinary background, specialized knowledge, theories generated, etc.) and reveal significance of scholarly contributions.	3

Facilitate an interactive class discussion by posing meaningful questions and perspectives that enable active participation (please refer to the online discussion board for the week’s readings). Include a short example analysis of a text that provides an opportunity to do and see discourse analysis (visual or hands-on way of approaching the material instead of a traditional lecture). (20-25 mins)	5
Make relevant connections with the course readings, previous discussions, and other resources in your presentation	1
Be creative and engaging, and keep the presentation to ~ 35 minutes including the activity.	1

3. Article Critique (10 points)

Each student will analyze and present an article that demonstrates one particular approach to discourse analysis. The main goal of this activity is to highlight how scholars do and publish discourse analyses. Finding and analyzing an article relevant to your field is an option. Students will receive up to 10 points based on the expectations listed below.

For presentation, students can choose one of the two options:

1. Create and upload a video presentation (e.g., narrated powerpoint or prezi) of your critique on the Discussion Board; use a screen capture tool (e.g., Kaltura, loom).
2. Present on your critique in the zoom live session.

Expectations	Points
Present a brief analysis of the author(s) to place the work in historical context (disciplinary background, current position, theories generated, etc.)	2
Describe and critique the article’s discourse analysis , and whether the research findings seem trustworthy, consistent, and credible. Use the term and concepts from class.	4
Apply course readings/authors appropriately to do your article analysis	2
Post your critique on the Discussion Board (video presentation for asynchronous presenters; powerpoint, word document or prezi for synchronous presenters) and provide feedback for your peer comments and questions under your presentation	1
Be creative and engaging, and keep your presentation to no more than 15 minutes.	1
	10

DISCOURSE ANALYSIS PROJECT (60 POINTS)

4. Proposal (5 points)

You will submit a 2-3 page proposal for a discourse analysis project (double-spaced). Before you submit your proposal, explore the feasibility of your project. You may find one of the following on your topic: a major policy report, a historical document, a series of related news or magazine articles, a set of related websites, transcripts of a TV program, meeting, speech, or interview, etc. Ideally, choose something with visual elements as well as text. You want to be able to try a variety of approaches to the same text(s), and to analyze them on multiple levels. This process will be more time consuming than you expect. You should consider whether/how this project could be used toward your dissertation work and/or a formal presentation at a scholarly conference. You may work with other students or professors; although you may choose the same data, you will do your own analyses.

Your proposal must include:

Expectations	Points
An introduction/summary posted in DB	1
A rationale for your topic selection and draft research question(s)	1
A description of the text(s) that you will analyze; links and/or samples in appendices	1
Your initial ideas about how you might approach the analysis with what you will “see” in the source at this point. This will evolve as the class goes along, but give it a try	1
Questions you have about the project; overall writing and quality	1

5. Transcription (10 points)

You will transcribe at least 10~15 minutes of social interaction (from audio or video data) related to your proposed project, per Jefferson’s notations. The chosen data can be part of your own project or it can be data for this particular transcription exercise. The transcript must:

Expectations	Points
Be at least 10-15 minutes long; Be from a social interaction, but this can include a social interaction where the ‘listener’ may not be as visible or have a large speaking role (e.g., a YouTube video clip)
Provide the context of the data (where, who, length, etc.)
Follow one or the combined conventions studied in class, which must be clearly labeled and described in your “transcription key” with your rationale for the notations (why did you choose them? What did they tell or did you expect them to tell you about your data?)
Provide a brief reflection on the transcription practice (e.g., what was new, informative, interesting, and challenging)
Include at least 2 pages of close language transcription , using Jefferson’s notations

6. Draft Analysis (10) and Peer Feedback (5 points)

In this course, you will practice different approaches to discourse analysis. For your final project preparation and paper, you must expand upon one of those approaches (or combinations of them), using the ideas and texts that you proposed at the beginning of the semester. You will share the draft analysis, then receive feedback on this draft analysis, in order to incorporate it into your final paper. You will share the draft analysis which includes all components above with your critical peer group for feedback (5 points). Use expectations below for your peer feedback.

Your draft analysis must include:

Expectations	Points
Information about the chosen text(s) for this assignment with an explanation of how it relates to your overall proposal/project	1
Detailed explanation of your data analysis procedure using terms and concepts from the course	2.5
A set of (tentative) claims or assertions based on your analysis with supporting evidence	4
A reflection on your process of conducting this type of discourse analysis, areas of challenges, changes you want to make in the future, and questions you still have	1.5
Overall quality of writing (APA style, appropriate reference list and appendices, grammar check, etc.)	1
	10

7. Final Project Presentation (5 points)

Students will work on their proposed project throughout the semester toward their final project. At the end of the semester, students will present and defend their project using a PowerPoint presentation. In this presentation, students must:

Expectations	Points
Introduce the topic and rationale of the project.	0.5
Describe the theories and approaches used in the project.	1.5
Describe the methods used in the project.	1.5
Describe your (preliminary) findings.	1
Share remaining questions, plans for next steps, and critical reflections on your project; use this as an opportunity to get feedback.	0.5

8. Final Paper – Discourse Analysis Project (25 points)

Using the draft analysis completed throughout the semester, students will write a paper (potentially) for publication. Situate your work in the field of discourse analysis/discourse studies by drawing on the course readings and other empirical literature relevant to your topic. Final project will be graded on the following rubric:

Expectations	Points
Introduction with a significant rationale for the study and clear thesis that is supported throughout the paper	3
Framework with sections on relevant theories and background/empirical research of your chosen topic; demonstrate your understanding of the field of your study as well as critical discourse analysis as your conceptual framework (i.e., how/why you have chosen your approach for the paper) through appropriate citation of literature, course readings, and other related materials	5
Methods section which clearly explains your methodological procedures in designing and	5

conducting your analysis; demonstrate your understanding of the methodological aspects of CDA in this section
Findings , developed from a thorough discourse analysis of your chosen text materials	5
Conclusion (and implication) with a brief summary and implications of your study	2
Overall quality of paper (writing, organization, APA style) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Clear writing and organization of paper (1.5) • Appropriate in-text citations, reference list, and appendices, etc. (1.5) • Well-organized “sub-sections,” with relevant titles and a logical and coherent argument throughout the paper; paper length between 20 and 20 pages (double-spaced) (2) 	5
